GERMAICAN SKATE TOUR – KINGSTON

Media Coverage Report

Event Date: December 19–21, 2025
Venue: Kingston Creative, Downtown Kingston
Organizer: Jamaica Skate Culture Foundation
Supported by the Embassy of Germany in Jamaica

Executive Summary

The Germaican Skate Tour – Kingston 2025 marked the Kingston stage of a planned national tour initiative.

Organized by the Jamaica Skate Culture Foundation with the support of the Embassy of Germany in Jamaica, the event introduced approximately 150 participants — including nearly 100 youth from inner-city communities — to skateboarding as both an Olympic discipline and a tool for social development.

The initiative builds upon prior European cooperation, including the construction of Jamaica's first mobile skatepark and the delivery of the country's first certified skateboard instructor training programme in 2024.

The Kingston stage generated significant national visibility, resulting in 46 documented media publications, national television coverage (TVJ News and Sports), and widespread radio syndication across major Jamaican stations.

The participation of H.E. Ambassador Jan Hendrik van Thiel during the official closing event further reinforced the institutional dimension of the initiative.

French pioneer calls for skate parks to empower Jamaican youth

BY JASON CROSS

Remy Walter (right), founder of Jamaica Skate Culture Foundation, introduces German Ambassador Jan Hendrik van Thiel (second right), the ambassador's wife Mrs van Thiel (third right), and French Ambassador Marianne Ziss (fourth right) to the team of skateboarders at Kingston Creative car park on Water Lane on Sunday, December 21, 2025.

FRENCHMAN Remy Walter came to Jamaica for the first time 45 years ago with international record producer Chris Blackwell to do music. Today, his mission has shifted to promoting a skateboard culture on the island as a way to steer youth to a positive path.

"The prime minister [Dr Andrew Holness] has said we need a park in every parish but I am telling him that there needs to be a skate park in every parish because people need to gather somewhere to do more than just football and cricket. Some of them want to do something else, and skateboarding is a new sport for them that is really appealing and is part of the international arts culture," Walter told the Jamaica Observer.

He pointed out that there are only two skate parks in Jamaica and argued that mayors and Members of Parliament (MPs) need to recognise there is real value in having skate parks in their towns and constituencies.

"Portmore, Mandeville, Port Antonio, Ocho Rios, Treasure Beach, and Montego Bay, all these places need a skate park for the youth. Only two skate parks exist right now in Jamaica — there is one in Bull Bay and one in Boston Bay. That is not enough," he argued.

"We are promoting skateboarding and we want to tell some of the deciders like the mayors and MPs that making a skate park is not that expensive. It is just a piece of concrete but it can bring a lot to the youth and give them a place to play, have fun, socialise, and meet new people. It is also a tourist attraction," Walter said.

He added that by having more skate parks the island would attract more visitors, creating an opportunity for locals to receive exposure to different cultures.

"It is good for the youth to mingle and meet people from different countries. Skateboarding is like graffiti. It is international culture and people love to gather around the passion and that is what we want to promote," said Walter who is partnering with the French and German embassies in Jamaica, and others to promote skateboarding among youth through an initiative dubbed the 'Germaican Tour'.

"The embassies of France and Germany as well as the Canadian High Commission are of great help for this project of skateboarding and spreading its culture. They understand the urgency and how it can be useful as a social tool. It is not only about it being a sport and making competition but it can teach the youths and give them something to focus on and drive them in good spirits because it is easy for them to fall into bad hands," he said.

"Jamaica Skateboard Foundation was registered in 2020, we are here to promoting skateboarding through different projects," Walter added as he pointed out that skateboarding became an Olympic sport in 2016 which give young Jamaicans something on a big stage to aim for.

He shared that Jamaica stole his heart in 1980 when he was a teenager and he is happy that he is involved with a programme focused on youth development.

"I am from Paris. When I came to Jamaica in 1980, I was 15 years old. I came here for music. I acted in a movie and Chris Blackwell's girlfriend was playing in it. He heard me singing and he asked me to become a singer for Island Records. I travelled to The Bahamas with Blackwell and we became close.

"He was telling me that I have a Jamaican vibe so he said I should come with him on the private plane. He was going to do a tour with Jacob Miller and Bob Marley. I met Jacob Miller in the studio and sang on his last record called New Age Music and I became very close with Jacob as well," Walter shared.

"I flew to Jamaica on a private plane with Jacob Miller and Chris Blackwell before they did a tour in Brazil with Bob Marley. I then landed in Kingston. I went to Strawberry Hills before it was a hotel and I went to Golden Eye. I was living with Chris Blackwell and then I met the Henzell family — Perry, Sally, Jason, and Justin. They are all part of my roots. I got caught up in the culture and now I spend more time in Jamaica than France," he said, sharing that a few years ago he got married to a beautiful Maroon woman from Portland who makes him happy.

THE STAR – MONDAY DECEMBER 22

Mobile skate tour downtown a hit with kids

Friday's first day of the Jamaica Skate Culture Foundation's (JSCF) Germaican Skate Tour on Water Lane, downtown Kingston, was a hit with the many children who attended and got a chance to put on the various pieces of safety gear and enjoy the skateboarding experience.

The children were also introduced to street art painting as part of the overall activity at the mobile skate park. The tour continued yesterday with additional activities.

Most of the children at the skate park showed from the nearby communities of Southside, Tel-A-Viv, Waltham Park and Trench Town. Yesterday's activities catered mainly to children from Tivoli Gardens and other inner-city communities around the area.

Remy Walter, president of the JSCF and organiser of the Germaican Skate Tour – which will eventually travel across the island in 2026 – was pleased with the turnout and children's response. He has high expectations for the sport in Jamaica and thinks if it is taken seriously the country could one day produce an Olympian skateboarder.

The French and the German ambassador joined yesterday's activities on stage around 1:30 p.m. with Dr Kevin Brown, president, University of Technology, and discussed their contribution to the programme. France finances the skate mobile skate park, Germany is financing the tour, and UTech, since August, assembled the skate park with the German (manufacturer).

Walter said the park "is one of the best in the world".

He intends to eventually build small skate parks in the Corporate Area and across the island, to grow the sport.

"So we have a hub now in Kingston because we strongly believe with one million people that they need one or even two or three good skate parks for all the communities," he said.

"So our project is to try to get the funds to make a skate park in Kingston, but also in MoBay, in Ochi, in all these big towns. But also you can make small ones, like very small, a few like 20 metres, like a few square metres, and you can bring them in different communities, like Tivoli, Trench Town and they will have a little skate park to train and then they will come to the bigger one," added Walter.

He said newcomers to the sport are welcomed at any time, especially during the tour.

"If you want to try skateboarding and you are in between five years old and 55 or more and you really want to jump on the skateboard, we can help you to do it properly because we have teachers and there's a little bit of technique to know," Walter said. "...We're here to promote skateboarding, so anybody who want to know more about what we do, about skateboarding or to try skateboarding, they are welcome."

The JSCF, a registered charity, was founded in 2020 and seeks to use skateboarding and urban culture as tools for youth development, education, inclusion, and violence prevention.

Germaican Skate Tour ends on successful note in downtown Kingston

THE three-day mobile Germaican Skate Tour ended on Sunday at Kingston Creative car park on Water Lane in downtown Kingston on a successful note, with children and adults from across the Corporate Area and neighbouring parishes getting a taste of the sport of skateboarding.

Spectators were also treated to demonstrations from the Eduskateme team of accomplished skaters.

Many of the children who showed up came from Southside, Waltham Park, Trench Town, and Tivoli Gardens as well as other inner-city communities.

The Germaican Skate Tour was organised by the Jamaica Skate Culture Foundation (JSCF), headed by Remy Walter. Financing came from the German Embassy, while the French Embassy funded the manufacture of the mobile skate park.

The other main partner, the University of Technology (UTech), Jamaica has been home to the mobile park since August. UTech is also home to the only skateboard club in the Corporate Area.

German Ambassador Jan Hendrik van Thiel attended Sunday's final day as well as Friday's opening session.

He skateboarded on both days and was glowingly in support of the event.

"It's a wonderful project in many respects. First of all, because it's for the kids. It's kids from areas that don't have so much opportunity to express themselves and skateboard is something that is international. It's French, it's German, it's whatever country you name, but it's not yet enough Jamaican. You have Jamaican skateboarders, but you don't have enough.

Remy Walter, (right), founder of Jamaica Skate Culture Foundation, introduces German Ambassador Jan Hendrik van Thiel (second right), the German ambassador's wife Mrs van Thiel (third right), and French Ambassador Marianne Ziss (fourth right) to the team of skateboarders at Kingston Creative car park on Water Lane on Sunday.

"It's a universal thing, like art is a universal thing. It's now an Olympic sport so [it gives] a chance to young Jamaicans from areas which are not advantaged, perhaps disadvantaged even, to be part of the big family of skateboarders worldwide," he said.

"I wanted to be in contact with the kids and so I came on Friday. I got a teacher who is 50 years younger than me, he showed me a few tricks and it was fantastic. I saw the kids, how they were drawing their stuff, how they were skating, it was great fun. I really loved it, and it really convinced me that we have done the right thing in supporting this project," van Thiel continued.

French Ambassador Marianne Ziss spoke about her country's support for the Jamaica Skate Culture Foundation.

"The reason we support Jamaica's Skate Culture is that in 2024 Paris hosted the Olympic Games and we decided that skateboard be an Olympic sport. So we wanted to follow up on that and we wanted to maintain the Olympic spirit, so we funded Jamaica's Skate Culture. We supported them with the creation of a mobile skate park, and also we funded the training of 15 coaches," Ziss said.

Two members of the Eduskateme team spoke about their love for the sport.

Twelve-year old Jaiquan Dillon, who has been skateboarding for the past four years, said: "Skateboarding, from my perspective, is more than a sport, it's like a hobby."

He encouraged others to take up the sport.

"You can make it big in life with skateboarding," Dillon noted.

Ramese Wright, 13, has been on the skateboard for five years and sees it as a lifeline. He is looking to go all the way to the Olympics as a skateboarder.

"My skateboarding is about fun, being happy. I promise I will go to the Olympics," he asserted.

Walter said the JSCF is to schedule Germaican Skate Tour in Portmore, Ocho Rios, Mandeville, Montego Bay, and Negril in 2026.

He added: "The Germaican Skate Tour is going to depend also on the budget that we could get from Germany. They're still waiting for the motherland to say how much can be given in such and such, but the German ambassador has been a real supporter since day one. He's also a skateboarder so, yeah, we're in good hands."

The Jamaica Skate Culture Foundation, a registered charity, was founded in 2020. It seeks to use skateboarding and urban culture as tools for youth development, education, inclusion, and violence prevention.

ART WALK FESTIVAL 21 DECEMBER

ArtWalk Festival 2025

Downtown Kingston was buzzing Sunday last with music, movement, visual art, and community pride as the ArtWalk Festival transformed the city into an open-air celebration of Jamaica's creative power and cultural heritage.

Hosted by Arts NGO Kingston Creative, the festival brought together over 2,000 guests, with 100 artists, performers, vendors, cultural institutions, and residents for a full day of immersive experiences at Church Street and Water Lane in the downtown Kingston Art District.

The festival opened with a walk-through of artisan and food vendor booths, inviting patrons to meet creators, learn about their work, and support local enterprises. Throughout the day, free mural and augmented reality art tours departed from the Tours Desk, guiding participants through downtown Kingston's evolving public art landscape, to the Institute of Jamaica and National Gallery, and reinforcing the area's identity as a living cultural district.

A dynamic procession by the Southern Strikers Marching Band from Rae Town set the tone early, drawing crowds into the heart of the festival the French and German embassies, underscoring the diversity of creative expression shaping urban Kingston.

A key highlight of the day was the donor plaque unveiling ceremony, where Kingston Creative formally recognised partners contributing to the development of the Downtown Kingston Art District. Nicole Burgher from the PAC Kingston Airport Limited (PACKAL), Anuoke Matthews, Great Wall Motors (Stewart's Auto Jamaica),and Michael Maxwell from Digital Video Concepts, were acknowledged for their support. Executive director, Kingston Creative, Andrea Dempster Chung outlined the organisation's vision for the district, and reflected on the powerful contribution of the First 100 members to a transformed downtown.

One of the most-anticipated moments was the appearance of the Jonkunnu band, Jamaica's iconic Christmas tradition. Through performance and dialogue with the band leader, the audience was taken on a journey through the history, symbolism, African roots, and regional variations of Jonkunnu, emphasising the importance of intergenerational cultural transmission.

As the afternoon unfolded,

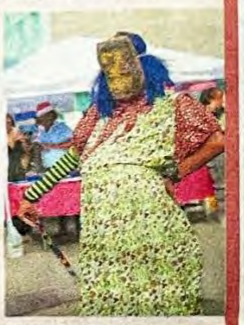

Entertaining the crowd was Jonkunnu character Red Indian.
